Great Demonstration Accorded Roosevelt.

THOUSANDS WERE IN COLUMBUS.

The Governor the Recipient of Great Ovations-Spoke to an Enormous Audience and as Great a Crowd Was on the Outside, Unable to Gain Admission.

since the great Blame demonstration in 1886 has this city been so crowded with visitors as it was on the occasion of the visit here of Governor Roosevelt. Every hotel was full and thousands of those who came to hear or see the governor who were beng cared for at the homes of residents of Columbus. Ten speeches made to large audiences since leaving Cincinnati had not impaired the governor's vocal organs nor did he show any evidence of fatigue when he was introduced at the Auditorium. Au impatient throng had been awaiting him nearly two

After the Roosevelt special arrived for about two fours the governor rode in a brilliantly illuminated electric car Wheat (old) 75 in a great parade through the princi-was more than two hours passing a given point, and its course was marked by a blaze of colored fire, rockets,

"then he strode across the platform thy governor was greeted with a rost of applause, yet he looked upon a smaller number of persons than com-able to find standing room in the building. Rem sing his brown rough rider hat, he bowed his accknowledgments to the audience as he took his seat 35 between Governor Nash and Emmett Tompkins, the chairman. Before the governor was introduced, the famous Columbus Republican Glee club, which has a membership of nearly 100, and Grant campaign, sang a parody on "I'd Like to Leave My Happy Home for You." On the speakers' stand was a picture of General Lawton, and the soldier's assertion that if he were to fall in the Philippines, he might as well die from a shot from one of his own men as a Fiilipino bullet.

When Governor Roosevelt arose to speak he was given such an enthusiastic greeting that for five minutes he could not make his voice heard in his endeavor to restore order. He said

"Mr. Bryan has been advocating a course in the Philippines that would stain indellibly with the stain of shame our national history. Now, r ask you in considering Mr. Bryan's prophesies to remember two or three facts-to remember who the Filipino insurgents are, for whom Mr. Bryan appeals by quoting the dectrine of consent by the governed. I ask you to remember two or three things in connection with this Filipino problem. In the first place, there are over 80 tribes in the Philippine islands. Only two of these tribes are against us The proposal of Mr. Pryan is that we should turn over the friendly Filipinos to those who have been shooting at our soldiers; that we should with incredible baseness desert the men who have been faithful to us and who have trusted in our good faith and turn them over to the wicked mercies of those who have been opposing us. He myokes the consent of the governed occir." for the Filipine. I can only stigma ize that as insincere and hypocratical until he invokes the same doctrine for our fellow-Americans who are colored, in North Carolina.

"Today I have seen marching in the Grand Army column colored veterans as well as white veterans. At Santiago I saw the colored troopers of the cavalry and colored infantrymen under Lawton and Hawkins advancing up San Juan hill and the slopes of Et Cancy side by side with the white troopers and white infantrymen, and leaving behind them lines of their dead and wounded. They stood shoulder to shoulder with their white brothers under the flag in battle. Surely we have a right to ask that where they have dared and endured and died that they should be given the privileges of citizenship that we extend to any man of white color. We ask no special privilege: we ask equal rights for any man, black or white, if he shows himself entitled to those rights. A fair field, fair play, no favor, but justice, That's what we ask. Mr. Bryan does not raise his voice for these attributes - for these qualities here in America, but he turns and asks us to free a Tagal bandit who has been shooting at our troops, to free him by allowing him to murder, plunder and ravish at his own dark will in the islands that have fallen to us as the result of the war with Spain. Now, who are these Tagalos who are in insurrection against us? Mr. Bryan and his followers have been saying that they are the educated and civillized people of the islands. Now let me relate two or three instances of what they have done over there. In the first place, Aguinaldo, their leader -have you ever followed his career? The anti-imperialist called him at one time the George Washington of the Now, just follow out Philippines. what this George Washington did. He first of all started the insurrection. All right so far. Then he sold out to the Spaniards for $400,000, part of it down and part of it to be paid him when he went to Hongkong. You can find the authority for that in the proceedings of the Spanish cortes and also

His career is a career of infamy. And any man who would propose to turn over any islands, any population on the earth, to be ruled by a man like Aguinaldo, is guilty of a crime against humanity and civ-Ilization. A year ago last February Culumbus, O., Oct. 17. - Not once the insurgent troops prepared to attack Manila. Manila had then surrendered to our army on his specific pledge that we would keep its people, its property and its churches unharmed and undamaged by the rebel Elipinos. We could not have given it up without breaking our plighted word. Mr. Bryan does not care for tude. plighted words. He cares as little for the plighted word given to the Spaniards when we took Manila as to our planted word to our creditors to pay them in full. I use strong lanthat proclamation, which is given in with the populace. full in the recent report of the secretary of war, he calls for an uprising of the Filipinos, and stated expressly that every fore gner, every man, woman and child not a Filipino, for he used the expression All foreigners who are not members of Filipino fam-illies should be put to death.' "That was what Aguinaldo and his Taxals were fighting for when they tried to take Manila, and those are the men to whom Mr. Bryan and every other backer of the Kansas City platform has given aid and encouragement. How, have those Filipinos carried on the war? They have taker prisoners some of our neaple. Some of them have escape; some of them have been put to death; some of them have been tortured to death. Three soldiers of a Philippine regiment, whom Colonel Guild, my companion, who was a saff officer of Fitzhugh Lee in the Spanish war, knew personally and saw march by on their way o the Philipsoldiers were captured and burned at the stake. Now that s what they do whom Bryan is abetting and encouraging to shoot at our men. That is their attitude toward us. Now, what is their attitude toward the other Filipinos? Turn to the report cabled over by our commission signed by Judge Taft, of Ohio. That report stated that the Filipino insurgents terrify the friendly natives: that they descend upon them and not merely number and murder them, but take them prisoners bull out their tengues and break their limbs with rods of iron, stretch them naked on hot coals. "Men of Ohio, if old Anthony Yavne had waited till he got the consent of Robert A. Van Wyck, on his right the Indians before he fought the Battle of Fallen Timbers. Ohio would be on Indian hunting ground today. There • re anti-imperialists in those days who are not wish to see it setled.

"The ": Jefferson, when he closed the Louisiana nurchase afterward issuch this erder to the general in command, Goneral Clarke:

" The case posterostile messession its refused, then force must be used,' not force with the consent of the governed-force-and if he inhabitantts are aarmed and brought in opposition to us then force must be used.

"This is in a letter of Sept. 14, 1803; I condense the anotation; and here is his idea of the way in which it is hest to give liberty and self-government to countries that have not had it You will find this on page 107, volume 10, of Tofferson's works:

"I think it would be better for these neerles to obtain freedom by degrees only, because they would be degrees bring light and information, and onatify them to take charge of themselves understandingly with more certainty, if in the meantime under so much control as may keep them at peace with one another."

Dinner in Nebraskan's Honor.

Larer there was a dinner at the Hofeman house in honor of Colonel Bryan. It was held in the Salon Louis Quinze. Full covers were laid, an increase fro what was first intended. The room was beautifully decorated with laurel leaves, palms and evergreens. Colonel Bryan's portrait, framed in a silk American flag. was just behind the chair reserved for Mayor Van Wyck, the presiding officer. It was discovered previously that the decorator had in arranging the portrait of Colonel Bryan latertwined the Filipino and American colors : Sout the picture. This was believed to be an error, and at dinnertime the colors of Aguinaldo were conspicuously ab-

All the tables were decorated with flowers, roses predominating. The service was to our people-hese Filipino bandits, the best the house could provide, linens of the most costly sort, the heaviest plate, cut glass and the best of china. Although Colonel Bryan did not drink his wine, glasses were provided just as for the other guests.

Mayor Van Walls sat in an inlaid chair brought fro. (Arabia. On either side of him, two and two, were special chairs on which sat Colonel Bryan, Mr. Croker, Adlai E. Stevenson and William R. Hearst.

When all were seated, Colonel Bryan was between Richard Croker and Mayor Van Wyck. The other guests at the main table were: In the chair, William J.Bryan, Richard Croker, John iam F. Mackay, Edwerd M. Shepard, John W. Keller. On the mayor's left were Adlai E. Stevenson, William R. Hearst, Webster Davis, John D. Richardson, Norman E. Mack, John De-Witt Warner and George M. Van Hoesen. At each plate was placed a souvenir program, bound in heavy dark paper, with the name of each guest in gold lettering on the cover. The menu was on cards, plain except for a portrait of Colonel Bryan above and the American flag in colors to the right.

The much-disputed cost of the dinner was settled by the Hoffman house manageer, who said that the cost was $12 per plate, exclusive of the wines. Soon after the dinner was over the party get into carriages and was driv-

As the face of Mr. Croker, behind which appeared Colonel Bryan's was seen,the crowd burst forth in one great prolonged vell. Everyone stood tiptoe on his seat and the garden was a As Colonel sea of waving flags. Bryan, escorted by Mr. Croker, mounted the speaker's stand the cheering was continuous. The two climbed the stairs and made their way to the front, followed by the reception committee. Colonel Bryan and Mr. Croker frequently responded to the cheering by bowing to the vast audience, and the faces of both were wreathed with smiles. Just behind the two as they mounted the platform Mayor Van Wyck escorted Edward M. Shepard, who acted as chairman of the meeting. The cheering continued, now dying down, now being renewed with increased vigor. It continued for about five minutes, not abating when Colonel Bryan arose to his feet and raised his hand Mr. Croker pulled him back into his seat. The cheering went on, Then Mr. Coker arose, hesitated a moment, then raised his hand for silence.

Instead of ceasing the crowd broke 14, Frank Weighand. forth louder than ever. Do what he could. Mr. Croker could not silence the crowd. After nearly 15 minutes of cheering, the applause began to deerease. Mingled cheers and hisses, the latter for silence, lasted a minute longer.

"Three cheers for our next presi dent," brought out a final cheer, but an effort to repeat it was drowned in cries of "Put him out."

Great Enthusiasm Was Manifested.

The enthusiasm nearly carried the frowd away. The throng at the Mad ison avenue end of the garden jam med down the aisles and the 60 odd policemen at that point had to do sin cere battle with the crowd to keep it under control. When quiet was restored, Mr. Croker arose, took Mr. Shepard by the hand and introduced him to the audience as chairman of the meeting. Before Mr. Shepard could get into the subject of "Imperial ism," to which most of his address was devoted, the crowd got so impatient to hear Colonel Bryan that Mr. Shepard could not proceed. He sud

The resolutions were cheered, though they could not be heard for the shouts for Bryan, and Mr. Shepard at once introduced the latter in a few short sentences. Colonel Bryan stepped to the railing about the stand as the throng broke afresh into cheers, He raised his hand for silence, but the cheers did not subside. Colonel Bryan was dressed simply in the black suit, with a short sack coat.

"Three cheers for our next president," came up from the audience, Colonel Bryan raising his hand in deprecation. The crowd was about to become quiet when, with a boom and a flash of fire, a flashlight bomb went off in the corner of the room. Women shricked and the crowd yelled, not knowing what it all was. There was great excitement and dsorder for a moment and calls for the police. A dozen policemen rushed to the spot where the man sat who had fired the bomb, grabbed him and hustled him and his camera out into the aisle and out of the garden, Colonel Bryan had stood quietly at the rail on the platform. There was another attempt to renew the cheering, but hisses greeted it, and Colonel Bryan commenced speaking.

The crowd began to this out when Ste venson began to speak and paid no particular attention to him and other speakers among them Mayor Jones, of Toledo, and Webster Davis. DOES HONESTY PAY?

A SUBJECT DISCUSSED BY THE JER-ICHC DEBATING SOCIETY.

Pap Perkins, the Postmaster, Tells How the Organization Was Started and How It Came to an Untimely and Inglorious End.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.] The Jericho Debatin society was Equar Joslyn's idea. It dawned on him one afternoon as he was hoein in over to the postoffice and made a speech and started the ball rollin. A meetin. There was a hot time fur got to say in favor of dishonesty." about an hour. Of the 40 men present 35 wanted to be president, but after awhile, and by puttin in two votes fur himself, the squar was duly elected. Deacon Spooner was made referee, and the other offices wasn't struggled after to any extent. There wasn't any debatin at the first meetin, but Squar Joslyn made a speech of acceptance which raised the price of butter in Jericho 10 cents a pound. After sayin that he wouldn't exchange places with the president of the United States he began with the year 750 B. C., and the way he come whirlin along down to the year 1900 made the glass in the windows rattle. He excited the crowd as he hit Nero, brought applause as he touched on Columbus, and when he got through with Washington there wasn't no holdin Enos Williams, and Jonas Bebee and Aaron Bradshaw was in tears. After the speech was over Elder Spooner figgered it up and declared that the squar had made 27 different p'ints in his oration, which was four p'ints more than Demosthenes or number on the affirmative and negative side was about even, and Ebenezer White was appointed to lead off and tell how honesty paid him. Each speaker was to be limited to ten minits. Ebenezer had been thinkin it over fur three or four days, and when he got up he began with:

Folier me back to the days of Julius Cæsar. When Cæsar was a young man of 22, he hadn't a dollar to his name and no show to strike a job. He had about made up his mind to commit suicide when he found a five dollar goldpiece in the road. His first thought was to use the money to start in business, but it was only a temptation. His honesty wouldn't permit such a thing. He went around inquirin who had lost $5, and at length found the owner, and the owner took a likin to him and pushed him along until he was finally made a king." "That's one tally mark fur the affirmative side," said the deacon as the speaker sat down, "and I decide that Ebenezer has made five p'ints. We will now hear from Jonas Bebee on the negative side."

"Foller me back to the days of Julius Cæsar," began Jonas as he rose up. "I object!" protested Ebenezer, "Havin follered me back, the meetin can't foller Jonas. I appeal to the referee." "I shall have to overrule the objection," said the deacon. "We follered Ebenezer back, and we must give Jonas jest as good a show. If he's got anything new about Julius Cæsar, we'd like to hear it."

"When Cæsar was a young man of 22, he hadn't a dollar to his name," continued Jonas, "and, though he offered to dig out stumps for 15 cents a day, he couldn't hit a job. He had made up his mind to hang himself when he found a stray mewl in the woods. He knew he ought to advertise the mewl and restore him to his owner, but dishonesty carried the day. He sold the critter to the first man who would buy, and with the $12 he received he went into politics and pushed along until he finally became one of the greatest men of his time. He lived fur 30 years after stealin that mewl. and be was bonored and respected and had a good time and died lamented by all."

"That's a tally mark on the negative side," said the deacon, "and the p'ints seem to be about even."

"But whar did Jonas git his facts?" asks Ebenezer.

"Whar did you git yours?" asked Jonas in reply.

The deacon said the speakin had best continue, and he called upon Aaron Bradshaw, who was on the affirmative side, fur his argyment. "Foller me back to the days of Julius Cæsar." began Aaron, with a wave of his hand, but when he had got that fur him down and appeal to the referee. "I've got to give Aaron a fair show," follered back to the days of Julius to wield it. Cæsar, this society has got to tag along behind him. It's rather a cur'us coincidence that the three of you want to be follered back to the same man, but troubles.

that's none of my business. Go on,

Aeron went on. He had it that Casar was poor and out of a job and discouraged when he happened to find a diamond ring in a mudhole. He could have got an advance of $50 on it at a pawnbroker's, but he actually went hungry fur three days while huntin up the loser. Struck by such a display of unselfish honesty, the owner presented him with $75, took him under his wing and in time made him king."

"That's another tally fur the affirmative," said the deacon, "and I guess his garden, and that evenin he come I'll give Aaron the same number of p'ints as the rest. Alvin Bidwell, of the negatives, is hitchin around in an week later the society had its first anxious way, and we'll hear what he's

"Foller me back to the days of Julius Cæsar." began Alvin in his ramblin voice, but that was yells and whoops and protests from Ebenezer, Jonas and | tic and wandering over the earth to do

"It's a cur'us coincidence, I'll admit," said the deacon when he could be heard, "but I don't see how we kin help but foller Alvin back if he insists upon it. Everybody must have a fair show. Alvin, hadn't you as lief be follered back to the garden of Eden or Dan'l in the lions' den?"

Alvin stuck fur Julius Cæsar and went abead. He found Julius poor and discouraged and livin on turnips, and he related how the young man sat down and thought it all over and then decided to steal a hog. He stole one. sold him for $3, doubled his money on a hoss race and finally made a place and name for himself. Had he continued to be honest be would have starved to death and been buried at the expense of the town. His dishonesty enabled him to become king and to do good to millions.

"The tallies are even so fur." said the deacon as Alvin sat down, "and we'll now hear from Philetus Johnson on the affirmative side."

"Foller me back to the days of Julius Cæsar," began Philetus as he rose up, and then thar was a row. It was a full ten minits before order was restored, and durin that time most everybody got his head punched at least once and his coat torn up the back. By and by Deacon Spooner said:

"It's a shame and a disgrace to the town of Jericho to carry on in this way. I notice that Lish Billings, who don't belong on either side, has jest come in. Lish, do you want to say anything?"

"Not very much," replied Lish as he looked around. "I'd simply like to ask if anybody here has lost this half dol-

He held up the coin in his fingers. There was 47 men in the room, and every single one of 'em. Includin the deacon and the squar, replied that it was his.

"As to the Debatin society, it may be a good thing," said Lish as a grin spread over his face; "but, as to the subject of discussion tonight, I guess you'd better drop it and let it stay dropped. This half dollar has bin in my pocket fur two weeks, and every one of you was willin to lie to git hold

Then Lish moved softly down stairs and went home, and after the rest of lieves is supernatural in her treatment the crowd had sat and looked at each other fur two or three minits in an uncomfortable way the president put on his bat and said:

"Instead of follerin anybody else back to the days of Julius Cæsar, I guess we'd better foller Lish Billings down stairs and call the thing bust-M. QUAD.

Indian Repartee.

An Indian agent who was a militia colonel desired to impress the Indians with the magnitude of his dignity. He dressed himself in full uniform, with his sword by his side, and rising in the council told them that one reason why the great father had had so much trouble with his red children was that he had sent civilians to

"You are warriors," he said, "and when the great father saw me he said, 'I will send this man, who is a great warrior, to my red children, who are warriors, and they will hear his words.' " An old chief arose and, surveying the speaker from head to foot, said calmly: "Since I was a small boy 1 have heard that white men have great warriors. I have always wanted to see one. I have looked upon one, and now I am ready to die."-"Reminiscences of the Bishop of Minnesota."

Dumas' Dramatic Intuition.

A story is told of the elder Dumas which illustrates his remarkable dramatic intuition. An eminent Parisian critic who sat beside him at a first performance noticed that he seemed abstracted.

"You are triste, my master," observed the critic.

"No." replied Dumas. "I'm not bored, but I'm somewhere else than here, so to speak. I am unable to follow any play to the end. I listen closely to the first act, and then my mind carries me off into thoughts of the play I would make of it."

native land by the Mexican government on the charge of fomenting uprisings among the red men, excommunicated by the Catholic church as a heregood by her powers of healing which she believes divine in origin-Santa Teresa has come to San Francisco, says The Call of that city. The sad eyed Mexican girl comes among skeptical Anglo-Saxon civilization with an air of zealous and unselfish devotion to suffering humanity, with a bearing devoid of assumption and with no tinge of hypocrisy, but a wide awake press agent and an interpreter will see that ner material interests do not suffer. They lend a coloring to the self sacrificing plans of the Jeanne d'Arc of the Yaquis.

Teresa Urrea, or Santa Teresa, or Senora Teresa Roderigues, since she was lately married to an Arizona Mexican of that name, gave an audience to newspaper men in a parlor of the Golden West hotel and tried in their presence her powers of healing. She was born 28 years ago in the little town of Sinaloa, Mexico. Her parents were of the poor agricultural class, and she is uneducated to the degree that she has not even heard of Joan of Arc or St. Theresa. She claims that when she was 16 years old she went into a trance which lasted 3 months and 18 days. During that time she performed miracles of healing, though she was unconscious of her acts. Since then she has had occasional trances and often feels, she says, an influence that she cannot explain and a guidance which she be-

"I believe in God," Santa Teresa said through her interpreter, "and in his ability and willingness to endow human beings with a portion of his divine power to havish pain and suffering power to banish pain and suffering.

"I have never encouraged the Indians to revolt or led them to believe that I am divine. I have gone among them, healing their sick and trying to relieve their wretchedness. I have been their friend, and in their ignorance they worshiped me. I pity the Indians of Sonora. I wish they were cared for and protected as this country protects its Indians. But there they have no rights, and I fear they will be exterminated. I would do anything for them, but I do not pretend to have any power to lead them to better conditions. I can only heal their sick, and that I am not allowed to do."

Santa Teresa said she had left Guaymas. El Paso. Nogales and other places because of the contentions that her healing had caused and her fear that bloodshed would follow. She expressed the greatest abhorrence for bloodshed and strife and the cruel practices of her countrymen.

Cocaine's New Use.

With the patient perfectly conscious, although rendered dead to pain by the use of cocaine, the surgical staff of the Receiving hospital in Oakland, Cal., amputated both feet and trepanned the skull of Miss Cora Friend, who had been struck by a railroad train. The operation was the first of its kind ever performed in Alameda county and one of the few ever tried on the Pacific coast. Dr. J. M. Shannon directed the administering of the cocaine, which administering of the cocaine, which was injected directly into the patient's spinal canal. Miss Friend was able to talk and gave directions to the surtalk and gave directions to the surgeons for her comfort. At no time did she lose consciousness, nor did she make any outcry while her feet were removed or her scalp laid bare and a piece of the skull removed. After the operation she rallied, and hopes are now entertained of her recovery. Had chloroform or ether been administered in her weakened state, the surgeons say, she would probably have died from shock during the operation.

INDIAN WIFE'S ROMANCE.

Suing For Divorce From the Man She Led to Klondike,

Back of the suit filed by Mrs. Kate Carmack, praying for divorce from George Carmack and a division of community property, says a dispatch from Hollister, Cal., there is a story of a romance that goes back to the discovcry of Klondike gold. Carmack is the first known white man to take the yellow metal from the Klondike. His claims on El Dorado and Bonanza creeks are now worth $1,000,000, and he has many thousands deposited in banks in Hollister.

Carmack spent 14 years in Alaska. and at the end he was no richer than when he first went north. Then he took an Indian wife. This squaw, the story goes, promised that she would lead him to the hand where gold nuggets were as plentiful as sands on the seashore. After they had been made man and wife according to the rites of the frontier she kept her word and. with her two brothers, known as Shoo kum Jim and Tagish Charlie, led him to the now famous Klondike.

Within two years Carmack was a millionaire, and on his return to the States he tired of his Indian wife. Last February he left her and their 8-year-old child in Hollister and returned to Alaska She names a Seattle woman as corespondent.

The United States government secured from Haiti an acknowledgment of its liability for indemnity, and Mr. Day w. appointed sole arbitrator to fix the amount of damages.

Poor's Manual For 1900.

THE BURLINGTON'S EXTENSION.

New Line Between Benver and South Dakota and Montana Mining Districts-World's Railway Congress to Be Held In Washington.

In the introduction to Poor's Manual For 1900, just issued, it is shown that there are 190,833 miles of complete railroad in this country. The net increase in mileage last year was 3,981 miles. The aggregate capital stock of these roads is $5,742,181,181 and the aggregate funded debt $5,644,858,027. The number of railroad corporations in this country is about 1,735, not including private railroads, and about 910 companies conduct the traffic operations of all the railroads. The tendency to absorption by consolidation is increasing constantly. Within recent years 1,785 railroad companies, with an aggregate mileage of 142,177, have passed out of legal existence. Fiftythree companies own and operate 131,-797 miles of railroad. Of this mileage 35,850 is leased. The total assets of all the railroads in the country at the beginning of this year were $12,-553,245,625. Within recent years, through reorganization, there has been an increase in share capital of $454,-407,316, while in bonded debts there was the large reduction of $227,259,-978, so that on the basis of mileage of railroad owned the reorganized companies are capitalized for $38,006 per mile of stock against $31,711 before reorganization and $34,227 per mile of bonds against $39,599 under the old organizations.

The Burlington's new line between Alliance, Neb., and Brush, Colo., has been formally opened to general traffic. The new branch is 149.69 miles long and is laid with 85 pound steel rails. It makes a short route between Denver and the rich mining districts of South Dakota and Montana.

The new line connects with the system's Guernsey extension at Northport, Neb., and practically opens up a new transcontinental railway between Colorado and points in Montana, Washington and the north Pacific coast. Under previous conditions the Burlington's traffic between Denver and the Black Hills had been handled by way of Lincoln. The new cut off reduces the distance 673 miles. A passenger is now able to leave Deadwood in the morning and reach Denver the same night.

The new line will be of marked importance to the lumber and shingle interests of the Puget sound district, as it will open up a new market. This trade has heretofore, to a great extent, been shut off from the Colorado markets because of the long haul.

Cyrus S. Sedgwick, prominently identified with a railway block signal company, who returned from Europe recently, commenting upon the few safety devices in use on European rail ways, says: "They are just beginning to use block signals over there, and the Paris, Lyons and Mediterraneau, a progressive road, is installing a system of disk signals. I visited the Paris exposition, and I was naturally interested in looking at safety appliances for the use of railways. I was much surprised to find that there was only one railway block signal on exhibition in the whole exposition, and, strangely enough, that was not put in by the company that manufactures it. It was our signal, but it was put on exhibition by the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean, which is quite proud of its new equipment. While I was at the exposition two prominent Italian civil engineers came along. They saw the signal working and were so interested in the affair that they traveled several hundred miles to see one in actual operation, owing to the impression the model made on them. I understand they intend to introduce the signals in amounts of money spent yearly on automatic couplers, track and block signals and signal towers and other safety devices, still sees many accidents. It is wonderful to think that, with so little precaution abroad, there are not greater and more frequent accidents."

The Great Northern railway, says a Montreal dispatch, is now all but completed and will within a month take its place as one of the great grain carrying roads of Canada. This road, starting from Quebec, runs in a southwesterly direction to Hawkesbury, Ont., where it joins the Canada Atlantic system, which runs to Parry sound, on the Georgian bay, and has in connection with it a fleet of grain boats on the upper great lakes. The great bridge over the Ottawa river is not yet altogether completed, but trains will be able to cross by the middle of October, and the line will then be formally opened to traffic. In order to handle the grain which it expects to carry the railway has built a million bushel elevator at Quebec.

POISONED WEAPONS.

Some of the Venomons Mixtures Used by the Barbarlans Retain Their Life Destroying Properties For an

From the age of stone up to the time when the art of killing one's neighbor led to the discovery of powder and firearms primitive peoples, owing to the insufficiency of their weapons, to cause prompt death, have invented means of giving them poisonous qualities. Poisoned weapons, whether they are arrows, knives, lances or what not, may get their fatal properties from either vegetable or animal poisons.

The South American Indians use curare; the natives of India, Indo-China, Borneo and the Moluccas employ, or rather did employ, the upas to poison their weapons; the negroes of the Sudan and the Kongo still make use of a poison extracted from different varieties of strophanthus called m'boumon or ine, according to the regions where it is employed; the people of South Africa, the Hottentots, the Bushmen, the Kaffirs and the Akkas, poison their arrows with the venom of divers serpents, the cobra de capello among others; certain tribes of equatorial Africa the N'Dris and the Banjiris. use their arrows after long burial in decomposing corpses, to communicate blood poisoning, which results in speedy death; in Oceanica the natives of New Caledonia, the Hebrides and the Solomon group give their enemies lockjaw by soaking their arrows in marshes containing large quantities of the bacillus of tetanus.

The first three kinds of poison are practically of vegetable origin, though the local medicine men mix with their preparations red ants, snakes' venom, toads' eyes, etc. They are the characteristic alkaloids of plants, which serve as the basis of a deadly poisonous mixture. Curare, upas and m'boumou have as their principal elements plants whose species vary with the tribe, and are of microbial origin.

What are the value, duration and activity of these poisons? Curare keeps ties in Iowa and Minnesota where the indefinitely. In 1757 in the course of experiments in physiology made in France with curarized arrows brought in 1752 from equatorial America by La Condamine, a fowl scratched with one of these arrows died in seven minutes. Among the Ouiteto Indians, lumps of curare handed down from father to son have preserved all their poisonous activity, although covered with mold. The same may be said for the upas, which, kept in little sections of bamboo for seven or eight years, retains the same active qualities as when freshly prepared. Malay weapons, even those of steel, always keep their poisonous

The venom of snakes, which is preserved indefinitely in alcohol, becomes covered in air with a peculiar mold, which has not been studied hitherto and which removes all pcisonous effect from the venom.

Thus in all cases the poisoned arrows of the races that make use of vegetable alkaloids are much more to be feared than those of the tribes that employ poisons of animal or microbian origin.

CHRONIC DISEASES.

CHRONIC DISEASES.

The Doctor treats no acute diseases, but makes a specialty of chronic and long-standing diseases. Cases given up by other doctors and pronounced incurable, he most desires to see. Br. Kutchin has treated over 12,000 cases in Ohio in the last two years, many of which had been given up as incurable, some to be Blind, others Deaf, and a Large Number to be Blind, others Deaf, and a Large Number to be havaids for Life. EXAMINATIONS FREE TO ALL

EXAMINATIONS FREE TO ALL.

Whenever it is known that Dr. Kutchin is stopping at a place, crowds gather to consult him, and it is not to be wondered at when it is remembered that in diagnosing a disease he never asks a question, but describes the different diseases better than the sick can themselves. It is a wonderful gift for anyone to possess, and Dr. Kutchin's diagnostic powers have created wonder throughout the country. He adopted the following plan, which is peculiar to the large hospitals, and is not and never has been the practice of country doctors, viz. he carefully notes the symptoms of the patient and ascertains the condition f the internal organs, all of which he carefully records in his register for future reference. In this way he ascertains the true nature of the disease and its cause. When sick people consult him he readily tells them whether he can cure or help them or whother they are beyond hope.

HIS IMPROVED METHODS OF TREATMENT

Are mild and pleasant; agree perfectly with the most delicate Lady or Child; do not reduce strength; can be used while at work, and give the greatest possible benefit in the shortest possible time. Patients can consuit him or communicate with him as often as they choose, during the whole time required for the cure, without regard to where they may be, and without extra charge, thus rendering the treatment as successful and satisfactory as though the; were living next door to each other. A LIFE OF EXPERIENCE.

The Doctor has had a whole life of studyand experience in his profession, and enjoysadvantages which fall to the lot of but few. After attending his Full Courses in the Medical Colleges, and graduating with the highest honors, he was not content to stop there, but has since attended other Colleges, and several times reviewed the whole protession; has also traveled extensively for the purpose of improvement, having visited the best Medical Colleges, Hospitals, Dispensaries, Eye, Ear, Lung and other Medical and Surgical Institutions, traveling thousands of miles, both by land and sea; expending thousands of dollars; improving every advantage within his command, and devoting the best years of his life to become thoroughly familiar with his profession in all its branches.

Latest Discoveries and Improvements. Dr. Kutchin has received the most approved instruction in Analytical and Microscopical Examinations of the Blood, Urine, etc., which are now considered indispensable to a correct diagnosis in many diseases. There are many diseases which physicians in common practice do not usually treat, and are, therefore, seldom prepared with necessary and costly outfit to examine correctly, or treat with success; such cases, therefore, would do well to call at once and learn their true condition, and whether the doors of Hope are yet open, or forever closed against them.

FACTS FOR MEN OF ALL AGES.

By reason of false modesty the youth of our land are kept in ignorance of the ruinous results which certain solitary indiscreet practices produce. These vices when persisted in eventually undermine the constitution inducing nervous debility and premature decay. Dr. Mutchin has for many years enjoyed the distinction of being the most successful and celebrated specialist for the treatment and cure of these affections. You may consult him with complete confidence. Of all the maiadies that afflict manking there is probably none about which physicians in general practice know so little. DELAY IS DANGEROUS.

Many diseases are so deceptive that hundreds of persons have them before they even suspect it. They know they are not well, but are perfectly ignorant of the deadly fangs which are fustening upon them, and must, sooner or later, certainly destroy them, unless rescued by a skillful hand. Are you afflicted? Your case may now be perfectly curable, but Remember, every moment of neglect brings you nearer its incurable stages, when, perhaps, the most skillful physician can render you no assistance. The present is ours, the future may be Toe Late.

Epilepsy or Fits scientifically treated and cared by a never-failing method.

Persons unskillfully treated by ignorant pretenders who keep trifling with them month after month, giving poisonous and injurious compounds, should call and see the Doctor.

The pur spit of what is generally dubbed by the craft "big game" in the timber and mountain wilds of the northwest is no child's play. To be successful a man mu t possess from nerve and unflinching determination. He must be a good filen frieng enough to stand rough work, for the latter is frequently necessary before the game can be reached, and the former is very liable to be an extremely useful accomplishment, especially if the quarry happens to be a grizzly bear.

Sportsmen who have shot in the wilds of Africa and India are apt to feel proud of their lion, tiger and other handsome skins, but with due respect would prefer the hide of a grizzly of their own killing than half a dozen other cat that ever jumped. Hunting grizzly is other work. The big plantigrade is always looking for trouble, and when he digs up the hatchet he goes on the warpath. You will have no friendly elephant nor army of beaters to satisfy his craving for somebody's scalp. You start on his track and follow him into his gloomy fastness amid a chaos of rocks, with "your life in one band and your rifle in the other," and unless you are made of the right material stop before the scent gets too hot, or you may be found empty banded by your party. However, this danger. spiced with a chance of escape, is very fascinating, and if you would fain be fascinated to your heart's content seek the mountains of the north and west and enjoy your whim. FAILURE OF PARIS FAIR.

Why It Did Not Prove a Financial Success.

HOTEL PEOPLE MAKE NO MONEY.

Visitors to Paris Did Not Turn Out to Be the Great Bonanzo Which Landfords and Restaurateurs Anticipated.-The Price of Tickets.

The coming of autumn has brought the long expected crowd to Paris, writes the correspondent of the New York Evening Post from that city. In April and May boarding house and inn keepers comforted themselves for the lack of custom with the excuse of a premature opening of the exposition. Foreigners and Frenchmen alike were waiting until they could be sure of all the promised magnificence. Then June, the rich man's month, when money should be as common as roses, passed with half filled hotels. The English were evidently occupied with their own affairs, and they have continued so until now. Resorts like Pontresina, in the Engadine, which are especially fawored by Britons uneasy to step off their island, have had a meager year. The boycotting of Paris, because the French press paid back with Boerism the English Dreyfusism of a year before, is not needed as an explanation of the absence of wealthy English visitors. Even Americans were in less number than had been expected, but this was attributed to the scare of high prices started with more or less foundation in fact. And August was only more dead than July for all those who proposed to make money from their Paris hospitality.

Not that the attendance of the exposition has been less than was expected. at least by sober minds. This has been steadily greater than at any previous Paris show of the kind, but it has not profited the sellers of high priced food and lodgings. It has been a cheap crowd from the start. The admission tickets, floated by the lottery bonds to which they were attached, soon fell from the face value of 20 sous to 8 and 6 and even less. In 1889 they were no time lower than 12; in 1878 they remained above par. On Sundays and holidays all Paris, from Bohemlan Montmartre to working Montrouge, came out to see its fair. These visitors brought their eating with them. At most they bought the national bottle of red wine-a few more sous added to their entrance money-and they looked on from the outside only at the parades of the various shows of the Rue de Paris or in rare instances ventured to pay the price of some of the cheaper and more elementary amusements. Meanwhile foreign visitors have been, in proportions beyond all expectation, those Germans of the middle class who have learned the secret of plain living while doing apparently a deal of high thinking as they go about the exhibition, catalogue in hand, with a painful rouguness. They scent out infallibly the cheaper places where they can obtain their necessary modicum of comfort. With the vacation season the provincial families of France appeared like a flight of passenger pigeons. They are no more money spending on their travels than Germans and Dutch.

Of the money throwing nations there have not been enough Russians to make the year fat, and there have been far too many Cook's trippers and others more or less personally conducted among Americans and English to furnish a public for the expensive restaurants of the exposition. These are 300 in 1900 where 30 were sufficient in 1839. There is an equal plethora of amusements, widely scattered, often childish or of limited interest, even to the French, as where Montmartre permuaded itself that its topical singers were of some interest to the rest of the world. Add to this that inside the exposition grounds all concessions have been sold at the very highest prices, based on the maximum possible number of visitors and money spending. Outside rents have gone up, and there has been the same multiplication beyoud measure of places for eating and drinking and sleeping, as if all the world from Spitzbergen to Cape Horn were setting out for Paris.

If there is an undercurrent of feeling that Great Britain and the United States have not been completely represented, the radical fault should be brought home to the lack of patriotic enthusiasm, union and collective organization among the national producers themselves. Notably in the American section, with all its serious gaps and in spite of a mediocre filling in with shop articles, there has been a real success of many individual exhibits, which cannot but have farreaching results in our national commerce. If some of our most creditable products are quite wanting, it is mainly because separate industries with us do not constitute a collectivity capable of uniting for a common end, as is the case in Germany. And then, in the United States there is no one to signify to recalcitrant parties the imperative request of "superior authority," as in the empire of the kaiser.

Count Tolstol explains that the Greek church will not formally excommunicate him. It has given orders that he shall not have an orthodox funeral at his death, which Tolstoi says entirely meets his wishes. MOOSE AND DEER IN MAINE. Reports That Give Promise of Unusually Good Sport This Year. Now is the time of year, says the Boston Herald, when the devotees of the chase furbish up their arms and bring out their hunting costumes, preparatory to the enjoyment of a season in the woods. Each succeeding year emphasizes more and more the importance of early preparation, the first men on the hunting ground getting the cream of the sport, now that the annual exodus to the woods numbers into

Probably one would think of Maine at once, when a question of fall hunting comes up, and that state still ranks at the top in facilities offered. It is there only, of all the eastern states at least, that one can find the nearest approach to the forest primeval. It is in that state also that the laws governing the sport have reached their fullest development, giving everybody a fairer show, even if the restrictions seem at times annoying.

Maine will again this fall be a pleasure ground for thousands of sportsmen from Massachusetts, New York and even the far western states, and that there will be plenty of room for them and plenty of game goes without saying. Few people who have not visited Maine realize its immense proportions. The northern portion of the state is one vast wilderness, greater in area than Vermont and New Hampshire combined, and this is the natural home for deer and moose. This big tract is owned by lumbermen, who, in return for the protection afforded by the state laws, submit to the enforcement of game laws by the state, so that the whole area is one large preserve to which sportsmen from out of the state are welcome as long as they conform to the laws regulating the hunting. Washington county has also developed into a great hunting region.

The Maine deer is a hardy animal and one which increases rapidly from natural causes. It has been said on good authority that the deer in Maine propagate more rapidly than they could possibly be killed by bunters using legitimate methods. The Maine deer is much larger than the species to be found in the southern states, the bucks oftentimes weighing 275 pounds and in some cases 50 pounds more than Electrical Goods In Turkey.

The United States charge at Constantinople, Mr. Griscom, writes under recent date that about two months ago a United States firm made a shipment of electrical appliances to Constantinople. Upon arrival there the merchandise was seized in the custom house and refused admittance to the empire, the introduction of electrical appliances of any description being prohibited. Mr. Griscom caused some samples of the goods, small read ing lamps, toys with storage batteries attached, etc., to be taken to the palace and brought to the attention of the sultan. The latter was much attracted by the novelty of the articles and bought the whole consignment for his personal use. He also issued an irade authorizing the introduction of similar articles into the country. It is to be hoped, adds Mr. Griscom, that a permanent trade may be established in this class of goods, though it should be understood that the irade does not refer to electrical appliances of all kinds. The general interdiction against dynamos, electrical plants, telephones, etc., still ex-

The Marine band at the present day is the largest regularly enlisted band in the world, says the Washington Post. In England there is one military band larger, but there the men enlist under contract for one year. Here every man is in the service for a term of five years. The men's duties consist in being present at the barracks for guard mount every morning at 8:30] o'clock, at rehearsal daily from 9:30 until 12 o'clock, and from then on they are free, except during the summer, when the three weekly concerts are given. There is but one thorn in their otherwise happy position and that is that they are not allowed to travel as an organization on concert tours to different parts of the country.

Mining Activity In the Black Hills. There is considerable mining activity in the Black Hills, and a number of new mines are being opened up. Comparisons made between the present condition of mining in the Black Hills and that of Colorado, Idaho and other western precious metal states are not at all unfavorable to the former. Last year upward of $8,000,000 was taken from Lawrence county mines, one of them being the Homestake. There is said to be not more than one stamp mill standing idle in the county. And yet the Black Hills mining industry can be said to be practically in its infancy, for there are great areas which will ultimately prove of great productiveness that yet remain unnoticed and unexploited.

Favors Uncooked Food.

Professor B. Tyler of Indianapolis says that human life would average three or four times longer than it does if people would reject the senseless practice of cooking their food. Animals and fowl live much longer in proportion to the period of full development than man. "Man, for some unknown reason, eats dead cells (cooked cells) to replace the dead cells that have been separated from the body. In cooking food all the acids and gases, so necessary for the conservation and preservation of ideal health, escape with the steam, and the food retains a greater supply of ash, lime and other such substances than nature requires for the amount of food taken into the ■ystem."

COLLISION IN HEAVENS

Facts Regarding a Notable Event In the Upper Regions.

Gigantic, Solid, Nouluminous Bodies Clash In the Constellation of Aquila, Creating New Nebula, From Which May Come Forth a New

An event of enormous importance in the locality where it occurred, writes Garrett P. Serviss in the New York Journal, took place something over a year ago at a point in space situated at an unknown distance from the earth, but included within the boundaries of the constellation known to astronomers as Aquila. It was no less an event than the creation of a new nebula, from which in the fullness of time a new world may come forth.

Information of this amazing occurrence was first obtained at the Harvard college observatory from an inspection of photographic plates exposed to the starry sky between April and October, 1899.

On April 21 of that year a new star made its appearance on one of the plates. Of the seventh magnitude, it glowed with flery brilliance among the fainter stars of Aquila, which form its nearest neighbors. Gradually it faded until in October it was of only the tenth magnitude. During the summer photographs of its spectrum were obtained, showing that it possessed the characteristic spectral lines which are found in other stars. But in October the photographs had another story to tell. They proclaimed that the stranger had changed its nature-that it was no longer a star, but had become a nebula!

During the past summer the fact of this wonderful change was confirmed and established by telescopic observation. Professor Wendell being able with the 15 inch equatorial telescope to detect the monochromatic or nebulous character of the light shed by the new phenomenon. While this is not the first observation of the kind, yet such changes are so infrequent in the heavens that whenever one occurs it excites renewed wonder and speculation.

What happened in the depths of space to cause a bright new light suddenly to make its appearance among a multitude of well known unchanging stars and why did the luminary thus unexpectedly created entirely alter its character within a few months, fading from a star into a nebula?

An answer can be given-in fact, has previously been given in a few similar cases—which at least accounts for what was seen. A tremendous collision took place in the open heavens. Two or possibly more solid nonluminous bodies, gigantic meteors or swarms of meteors, clashed together with such speed and fury that their substance was melted and vaporized, and from the heated mass thus formed blazed forth the radiance of a star, or sun, streaming across space and picturing itself brilliantly on the photographic plates that were recording the light waves which issued steadily from the thousands of changeless orbs in the midst of which it had appeared.

This was only the first effect of the collision or series of collisions. In a short time, as the heat became more intense, the entire mass of the colliding bodies was transformed into an expanding cloud of gases and vapors, and Marine Band Not Permitted to Tour, when this had occurred the light shed ceased to be sunlike or starlike, and spectral lines which had until then proclaimed the continued existence of solid or liquid matter in the interior of the wreck faded away, and only the soft glimmer of a nebula remained.

Here is a story of creation the exact opposite of that ordinarily told by the changes going on in the heavens. There are many nebulæ which give evidence that they are condensing and shaping themselves into stars, but out in Aquila just the reverse process has taken place. Bodies which may have been as large as the earth or even larger came together with planetary velocity, and, the laws of physics holding good, their arrested motion was transformed into heat so intense that they burst into a fiery cloud.

It is interesting to reflect that in this manuer the universe may be able to renew itself. Suns fade and flicker out, worlds grow cold and die, but let thein fall together in their swift rush through space, and almost in an instant they become glowing nebulæ through the condensation and transformation of which fresh suns and worlds may be formed.

Let such a catastrophe occur to our solar system after that remote day which is surely coming when the sun shall have ceased to shine, and out of the resulting nebulæ in the course of ages the identical atoms or corpuscles from which the bodies of living men are now shaped may issue to form new men inhabiting a new earth and rejoicing in the light of a new sun, with never a thought or the shadow of a memory concerning the things that have passed. If the atom is immortal and forms and types persist through all vicissitudes, what matter if a human lifetime is but as a breath and the career of the sun but a passing gleam? For these things come and go and come again.

Ruskin College at Trenton, Mo. Walter Vrooman, founder of the Ruskin hall movement in England, announces that a Ruskin Hall college has heen established at Trenton, Mo. The old Avalon college building and 1,600 acres of land adjoining have been secured. Mr. Vrooman says that he has collected $10,000 in this country for the movement in addition to the $20,000 contributed by English workmen.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETIES.

Some Interesting Facts From Dr. True's Year Book. Dr. A. C. True, director of the office of experiment stations, has written for the agricultural year book a most interesting account of the organization of agricultural societies in this coun-PROFESSOR SERVISS'OBSERVATIONS try. The first society of this character, according to Dr. True, was founded in Philadelphia, at that time the national capital, in 1785, and its membership comprised such men as George Washington, Benjamin Franklin and Timothy Pickering. The movement spread rapidly south and north along the fringe of Atlantic coast communities then constituting the United States.

In 1804 Dr. Thornton, the first United States commissioner of patents, proposed that agricultural fairs should be held in the city of Washington on market days, after the English fashion. The idea was eagerly taken up by the citizens and municipal authorities, and the first fair was held in October of that year. It was such a decided success that two others were held in the succeeding years, after which, however, they were discontinued.

Dr. True traces the growth of these societies down to the time when congress took them under its protection and then tells the story of their development under more favorable auspices. In the course of his paper Dr. True pays a tribute to the late Senator Morrill, who was known as the father of the agricultural colleges.

"It was fortunate," says Dr. True, "that at the very critical period for the movement during that year the national leader who sought to crystallize the growing demand of the people for technical education into an act of congress, endowing colleges for this purpose in every state of the Union, was a man of broad views and large practical sense, willing to draw his measure on comprehensive lines and leave future experience to work out successful results, even through many tribulations and great risk of fatal bungling. This man was Justin S. Morrill of Vermont, who, having by his own efforts risen to success in mercantile and agricultural pursuits in the midst of a hardworking but intelligent and progressive community, had come to congress in the prime of life. with an open mind toward every measure which promised to widen the opportunities and increase the welfare of the masses and had in it the promise of attaining practical results by businesslike methods."

Sixty-four colleges, it seems, under the provisions of the several laws on the subject, are in operation in the several states and territories. Of these all except four maintain courses in agriculture. In 14 states there are separate institutions for the white and colored students. All of the institutions are brought together to constitute a national system of higher education in the sciences and industries through the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations, the office of experiment stations at the department of agriculture and the bureau of education of the department of the interior.

ear For Train Robbers. Officials of railroad and express companies fear an epidemic of train and express car robberies, says the Chicago | Lou Per Tribune. Though detectives profess to believe that holding up of trains is an industry that is rapidly going out of fashion, the men who make robbery a profession do not seem to be in accord with their views.

Within the last year five express cars were looted, and the robbers secured $76,700. This is the loss as estimated by express companies, but it is a noted fact that officials of carrier companies are always inclined to withhold the real figures, so as to discourage future attempts. In the same period of a year one express company has suffered a loss of $21,000 by packages which disappeared while in transit. Passengers on two trains and one stage line were relieved of money and valuables. Thus, despite all efforts to class the train robber and express thief as a personage of the past, the total profits to the followers of the profession for less than a year have summed up at least $100,000.

In addition to this, two unsuccessful attempts were made to rob trains, which would have put the sum total away above that mark.

During the two months that navigation will yet be open vessels will be at a high premium, and it is probable that many trips will be made after the insurance companies will no longer actions.

Duke to Visit Queen.

When the Hereditary Grand Duke Michael of Russia, the younger brother of the czar and at present the heir to the throne, finishes his visit to Denmark, he will go to Scotland to visit the queen at Balmoral. The czar and the dowager empress want him to marry, so as to preserve the succession in the line of Alexander III, but as he cannot marry either a first cousin or a Roman Catholic his choice of a wife is considerably limited, and the only really eligible princesses appear to be the daughters of the Duke of Connaught, the younger sister of the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin and the Duchess of Albany's daughter.

Catarrh has become such a common flisease that a person entirely free from this disgusting complaint is seldom met with. It is customary to speak of Catarrh as nothing more serious than a bad cold, a simple inflammation of the nose and firoat. It is, in fact, a complicated and very dangerous disease; if not at first, it very soon becomes so.

The blood is quickly contaminated by the foul secretions, and the poison through the general circulation is carried to all parts of the system.

Salves, washes and sprays are unsatisfactory and disappointing, because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. does. It cleanses the blood of the poison and eliminates from the system all catarrhal secretions, and thus cures thoroughly and permanently the worst cases.

Mr. P. H. McAllister, of Harrodsburg, Ky., writes: "Having been a terrible sufferer from Catarrh, and being now sound and well, the question often put to me is, 'What cured you?' In answer I feel it ny duty to state that Swift's Specific is the medicine. I am such a true believer in the efficacy of Swift's Specific that I can honestly and

CORNER STONE LAID SURE SIGN OF DEATH.

Elaborate Ceremonies at Schuster Brewery.

CLEVELANDERS PRESENT.

Thirty Friends of J. W. Schuster Come Down From the Forest City, and one of Their Number Officiates as Master of Ceremonies-The Stone Will be Sealed This Afternoon.

With all due ceremony, the cornerstone of the Schuster Brewing Company's new brewery, in North West street, now in course of construction, was laid at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The stone will not be sealed until this afternoon, when will be placed therein the copper box containing the articles which, when again they are brought to light, will be regarded as relics of antiquity, for the new structure is being built fireproof and floodproof, to stand for ages. In the box there will be, among other things, a copy of the papers of incorporation of the Schuster Brewing Company, a copy of Monday's INDEPENDENT, and a card, coin or other small article from each of the guests present at the Sunday ceremonies.

Among those present at the laying o the corner stone on Sunday were about thirty Cleveland friends of J. W. Schuster, of this city, president of the Schuster Brewing Company, nearly all of whom are members of Concordia lodge, Free and Accepted Masons, of Cleveland, with which society Mr. Schuster is also connected. The Clevelanders came and went over the Valley railway. In the party were: George Heidenreich P. J. Probeck, Walter Jacoby, Henry G. Rudolph, Henry Bollinger, John Ernst, Fred W. Schwenk, Gust Schwenk, A. Bentzen, Christian Kuebler, Franz Hasselbarth, George H. Werner, M. Habluetzel, Wm. Buse, John Hueter, J. C. Seegrist, John Fix, Theo. Wachter, John Schneider, Henry Schreiber, Otto Philip Schreiber.

Richard Griesser, of Chicago, architect of the buildings, and G. F. Lidy, of Milwaukee, a representative of the Vilter Refrigerating Machine Company, which firm holds the contract for much of the apparatus needed in the brewery, were also present. The Massillon guests were: Mayor J. J. Wise, John Meinhart and George Curley, the contractors creeting the buildings, and ex-Mayor Tobias Schott, of the Schuster Brewing Company. Mrs. J. W. George Heidenreich, of Cleveland, the well known frescoist and sculptor, acted as master of ceremonies Sunday afternoon, and delivered a brief and happy address preceding the laying of the corner-stone. On behalf of Concordia lodge, F. & A. M., of Cleveland, Mr. Heidenreich presented Mr. Schuster with a silver trowel on which was engraved these two inscriptions, "Zaun Andenken an den 14 October, 1900," ,Es Wachse Und Gedeihe," which, translated, is, "To the Memory of October 14, 1900"; "May it

Mr. Schuster's response, accompanying the acceptance of the token, was a feeling reference to the lifelong friend ship between himself and guests, thanks for the pleasure he derived from their visit, saying that the ornamented trowel eyes, and expressed the hope that all would continue to enjoy health and prosperity and that they would meet many times in the future. Mayor Wise, being called upon, with characteristic grace of manner welcomed to the city the Clevelanders and concluded with a happily expressed wish for the success of the Schuster Brewing Company.

Among the guests were many excellent singers, and the exercises of the day were interspersed with well rendered selections by individuals, duets, quartettes and double quartettes. "Des Schaefer's Sonntagslied; Das ist der Tag des Herrn," ("The Shepherd's Sunday Song, This is the Son of the Lord,") was sung by a double quartette while the stone was being moved into place.

How We Used Up Our Forests. It is estimated that it takes twenty-two acres of spruce land to furnish enough wood pulp paper to run a large metro politan daily just two days. The writer who makes this statement deplores the time, when, at this rate, our forests will entirely disappear, and paper be very scarce and expensive. Meantime, the art of printing continues, because there are many truths the world should know; among others, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a cure for diseases of the stomach, such as dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, biliousness, insomnia and nervousness. LEGED, NEVER FAILS.

A Physician Who Says He Has Tried It in More Than a Thousand Cases Explains His Method of Preventing Premature Burial.

The question of an absolutely sure sign of death has troubled mankind from ancient times. It has been most variously answered, but never to entire satisfaction. The difficulties we meet with are: First, that not all organs of the body die in one moment, and second, that the action of some of the vital organs may be so diminished that by ordinary uscans it appears almost impossible to accide whether the life in them is in fact extinct or not.

The actual causes of physiological death are three: First, cessation of brain function; second, cessation of respiration or failure of the lungs; third, failure of the heart.

The first, involving immediate death of the central or animal nervous system only, is not at once followed by the inactivity of the peripheral nervous system and its special so called vegetative centers, as long ago was demonstrated by Brown-Sequard, Schiff and others. So the lungs may continue to contract and expand, the heart may continue to beat, even if with greatly diminished power. We know further that the life of the skin is not extinct. Hair and nails continue to grow, the stomach continues to digest, the liver to secrete bile, etc. Respecting the second cause of death, we well know that respiration may cease for quite awhile if the brain is not affected and the circulation not interrupted. And of the third cause, by heart failure, the same may be said. So we see that we may speak of true, absolute physiological death only after the cessation of function of the three organs together or at least of two of them, the lungs and the heart, without the life action of which the brain certainly cannot operate. Now, as regards respiration, we have very simple means to demonstrate its cessation. So remains, in fact, as the only one to show its true death the heart. This to prove indeed with abso-Steffen, John Yingling, Wm. Schwem- lute certainty is quite a difficult probler, Theo. Wedler, Adolph Diener and lem. Upon the absence therefore of any and all traces of circulation in the body have been concentrated most experiments. And as regards the same we have to take into consideration that by disease the heart beats might be diminished to but so few faint pulsations per minute, might become so imperceptible, that without the aid of special instruments and long continued observations nothing of their existence may be detected.

In the following I shall give the simple means by which any person easily enough may convince himself of the ab-Mrs. Kiefer, with a corps of assistants, sence or presence even of the slightest

If we ligate tight a member of the body-best, for example, a finger between the first and second joint-in the living we will soon notice, beginning alsumes a dark bluish red color. The entire upper portion will be thus affeeted, and only directly around the ligature there will be a small, colorless, white ring. Now, as sure as this discoloration will be observed in the living being, as sure will all traces of it be absent in the dead. The bluish discoloration occasionally observed of and around the finger nails in some corpses is of no influence upon, nor does it interfere in the slightest with, the phenomenon and its correct interpretation. The phenomenon of course is easily enough explained in the living by the stagnation of the blood in the veins and the capillaries when a new supply through the arteries and the backflow through the veins is cut off by the ligature. The white ring around the latter is produced by the partial arterial, partial venous anæmia. In place of a finger, if, as it at times may happen, the skin seems too thick would ever have a priceless value in his and horny to show the phenomenon plainly, though this will but seldom occur, one may use the toes, the earlaps. even the tip of the nose, if desired. The member must be only thin enough in order to make the ligature as tight and perfect as possible. I have used this means in about 1,030 to 1.040 cases previous to post mortem examinations. In one case only I observed the mentioned discoloration, though it was impossible to notice any heart action by any means. I at once resorted to venesection, and, sure enough, the blood flowed, and after a short time faint heart beats up to seven per minute could be distinguished. Everything was done to start respiration. Yet it was too late, and the heart beats within half an hour gradually diminished. The corpse had been lying for dead for over two hours.-Dr. Theodore Deecke in Utica Press.

A Lesson.

At a lesson in a medical college the other day one of the students, who was by no means a dullard, was asked by the professor, "How much is a dose of -" (giving the technical name of a strong poison).

"A tenspoonful," was the reply. The professor made no comment, but the student, a quarter of an hour later, realized that he had made a mistake, and straightway said: "Professor, I want to change my answer to that question." "It's too late, sir," responded the professor curtly, looking at his watch.

Chord Playing on the Piano.

Clear, incisive, resonant and powerful or beautifully shaded chord playing is not very commonly heard. In addition to the proper muscular conditions and the mode of attack, which should be carefully considered, good chord playing requires a proper shape of the hand and fingers. The hand should be well arched so that the metacarpal points are elevated considerably above the second joints. The wrist must be held high and the fingers well rounded. their third joints being perpendicular to the keys. With the hand in this position the fingers must be trained to resist a very heavy pressure, as at the moment of attack in heavy chord playing the weight of the body is thrown forcibly upon the finger tips. At this instant there must not be the least give or weakening in any of the joints of the fingers, the elasticity and looseness being in the muscles of the wrist and arm. The playing fingers should be firmly set, while those not playing must be well extended in order to avoid the accidental striking of adjacent keys. If the hand is kept in the shape described, all the tones of the chord played will be of equal power, and when the hand and arm are raised the dampers will fall upon all the strings which have been struck at the same instant, a thing that rarely happens in most of the chord playing that

In playing a succession of chords the fingers must be shaped in the air while going from one chord to the next, and this shaping must not in the least interfere with the solidity of the hand or the proper condition of the muscles .-

A lining of old brocade naturally suggests itself, as well as the thought that the extravagance of our foremothers quite equaled our own.

Autumn Millinery.

Millinery is rich in the extreme. The most beautiful velvets, heavy with gold embroideries or rich with incrustations of lace, are built into oddly shaped turbans and large picture hats. Crowns roll up a good deal to show bunches of ostrich tips against the hair. The pastel shades seem to be replaced by the most vivid and brilliant colors royal purple, the medium blues and even emerald green. But above all there is an excessive use of gold embroidery, and one trembles to think what dreadful imitations may follow in the train of this fashion, remarks an

PEKING SIEGE INCIDENTS

How Baron von Ketteler's Presentiment Saved the Foreigners.

BRAVE MAN'S VIOARIOUS SACRIFICE

Story of the German Minister's preter-Body Found In a Spiendid Chinese Coffin-Extent of the Chinese Governmental Conspiracy.

The young Baroness von Ketteler was probably the most unhappy person of all the number who endured the trials and hardships of the siege of Peking, says J. Martin Miller, the Peking correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Certainly she was the one most sympathized with. Wives whose husbands were shot down by the enemy, mothers who watched their babes die for lack of good air and nutritions food, hearts broken by their own grief. throbbed with sorrow for the woman whose husband's life was offered a vicarious sacrifice for all the foreigners in Peking. There are those who will contest this statement, there are diplomats who will emphatically deny it, but the fact remains that the great body of foreigners in Peking never question but that Baron von Ketteler's death was the final salvation of all.

On June 19, at 4 p. m., the tsung-li-yamen informed the foreign ministers by letter that they would be expected to leave within 24 hours under protection of Chinese soldiers. Baron von Ketteler was the only minister who did not think this request an evidence of Chinese enlightenment and understanding of international courtesy. The French minister, as well as Sir Claude Macdonald and Minister Conger, was for going, but Baron von Ketteler, more suspicious of Chinese treachery and diplomacy, saw massacre for all outside the city gates in a country swarming with red handed Boxers and uncertain soldiery.

He remarked at dinner that night. "I may be nervous or overworked or something, but I am apprehensive of evil if we leave the city."

The following morning, the 20th, he arose, determined to enter a protest to the tsung-li-yamen. A brave man always, he started on his errand, accompanied only by his interpreter, Mr. Cordes. They rode in the sedan chairs used by all ministers when calling upon Chinese officials.

Before leaving his bouse, about 10 a. m., he bade his wife, to whom he was most devotedly attached, a first and then a second farewell, saying as he did so: "Do not worry if I am gone long. Be sure that I am succeeding and that the officials are listening to me." But the baron did not reach the yamen, for when only two-thirds of the way there he was shot down by the Chinese imperial troops who were to form the promised escort to Tientsin. Mr. Cordes was also shot in the leg. Nevertheless he ran forward, looked into Baron von Ketteler's chair and saw that he was quite dead, a ghastly bullet wound in his heart. Mr. Cordes then turned, followed by a shower of bullets. He fled down a small side street. The people along the narrow street refused to reply to his questions as to the exact location of the American Methodist Episcopal mission, which be knew was somewhere in that neighborhood. Finally he met an old bread peddler, who, not daring to stop in conversation with him, sang in his street calls the direction in which he was to turn. Mr. Cordes turned north instead of south. The old fellow sang out "south" again. Mr. Cordes, almost dead and given out, turned south, ran a short distance and fell fainting at the northeast barricade of the Methodist Episcopal mission, where were gathered all the American missionaries of Peking and Tung Chow, over 70 in number.

The brutal murder of the German minister ran like wildfire over the entire foreign community. The missionaries, who were endeavoring to stifle their fears and pack small trunks, as commanded to do by Minister Conger, for the afternoon's start to Tien-tsin, gathered a few things into the smallest compass possible. Some took steamer trunks, some hand bundles. Mothers took baby food. Captain Hall, in charge of the Twentieth United States marines, sent by Minister Conger for defense, ordered all to march to the American legation, the native Chinese refugees to follow in the rear.

What a march, out through their own barricades thrown up by Mr. Francis Gamewell of the M. E. mission, the man who by his skill in fortifying became the great man of the siege later. down Haut-a-men street almost to the Great Haut-a-men gate, over whose second story balustrade hung a thoumad Chinese soldiers, the long process

But the American legation, a distance of half a mile, was reached in safety. From thence all removed to the British legation, and that afternoon of June 20, at 4 p. m., which was to have seen a train of 1,000 carts full of half armed men, helpless women and babies, insufficiently guarded by 400 marines, found almost every foreigner in Peking safe in the British legation, the native Christians in the palace of the hereditary prince and guarded by the in nearly every department. Four o'clock found foreigners and native converts under command of Mr. Gamewell, into whose hands Sir Claude Macdonald gave the entire work of fortifying, all hands busy preparing to make a stand against the imperial troops that had been promised as the safe escort to Tien-tsin, for upon news of Baron von Ketteler's murder the ministerial body stood aghast at the thought of their contemplated and arranged for journey and hurriedly ordered all to the British le-

The world yet has heard little of this, but praise and thanks and public acknowledgments should not be withheld from brave Baron von Ketteler's memory. All know now, as many did whose hearts failed them when the order to prepare to leave Peking was read, that certain massacre by imperial order awaited us outside the city walls-massacre only averted by Baron von Ketteler's death. Alas, that it took so much, after months of trickery and inaction on the part of the Chinese and Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw. Plans for officials, to convince the body of min- the extension of the law school are unisters that in such a crisis they could not trust to Chinese promises of protection!

And so many, who were unknown to her, mourned with the young baroness, and many an eye filled with sympathy when, after the troops for relief came, she was seen, tall, slender, statuesque, her face drawn with suffering, moving about like one from whom the Jr., the new secretary, began his offispirit almost had fled.

And more than she felt glad when, nearly nine weeks after his death, the are not complete. CENSUS GUESSES.

Wagers Made Upon the Total Popuintion of the United States.

Guessing on the census returns has been one of the standard amusements of the corps of experts engaged in taking the federal enumeration for 1900 during a season which has afforded opportunities for few other forms of recreation, says a Washington dispatch. to the New York Post. There seems now to be a better change for those triculated in the freshman class and guesses which fell short of 75,000,000 in various special branches of study. than for those which rose any distance above it.

Among others who are watching for the total with particular interest are Robert P. Porter, the superintendent of the census of 1890, and Herman Hollerith, who furnishes the electric tabulators to the census office. They have a wager up, involving a dinner for a select group of colleagues who were with them at the time they set their stakes several months ago. Mr. Hoderith's claim was a population of more than 76,000,000; Mr. Porter did not believe the count would exceed that figure. The rest of the party, not to be left out of the sport, wrote each his estimate upon a paper, which was duly scaled and deposited with a stake- its existence as a college. The freshholder. Eight new buildings are in course of construction, seven being built with recent bequests to the university. Harvard Union, the gift of Major Henry Lee Higginson, will be nearly completed during the present year. The foundations are laid on the old Warren estate, opposite Beck hall. The home of the School of Architecture is rising on Quincy street near Sever hall. Ground has been broken for the new Semitic museum, the gift of Jacob H. Schiff of New York. Stillman infirmary, given by James Stillman of New York, will be finished during the year. The foundations of the engineering building, to be erected at a cost of $175,000 from the bequest of the late Henry L. Pierce, have been laid on the east end of Holmes field, near Perkins hall. The new boathouse, originally costing $27,-000, subscribed by Harvard graduates of New York and burned last December when half finished, is again nearing completion on a much improved plan. Alexander Agassiz baving added more than $6,000 to the former subscription. The final portion of the great University museum, connecting the main building with Peabody museum, which is to cost $100,000, recently was promised by Mr. Agassiz and his sisters. Mrs. Henry L. What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extra-ordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. A FEW OBSERVATIONS REGARDING TAXES.

Taxes are now due. First half payable between October I and December 20. Last half payable between April I and June 20. Taxes become a lien on property the day preceding the second

All delinquent taxes must be paid before December 20, otherwise property will be advertised, and the third Tuesday of January be After becoming delinquent, the penalty on Real Estate is 15 per cent.; on delinquent Personal Tax the penalty is 10 per cent. per cent., plus 6 per cent. interest. If not redeemed within two years the property goes to the tax title purchaser.

Taxpayers have option of paying full year's tax during December collection period, but are required to pay first half with delinquencies. The remaining half should be paid within June collection.

The tax year and calendar year are not the same. The first half of any year's tax is due and payable October 1, and until December 20. The second half is payable up to June 20 of the following year.

Many taxpayers have formed the habit of paying the December tax and the preceding June tax together, thinking they are paying the full year's tax. All such are paying the last half of one year's tax and the first half of the following year's tax, and consequently they are paying 15 per cent. penalty on the preceding June tax. The proper way to pay a full year's tax without penalty is to pay in December for December and the following June.

Dog Tax and Road Tax are paid in full at the December collection each year. Therefore, to get the December rate, add the road to the whole rate and take half. To get the June rate, subtract the road rate from the full rate and take half. To get, the December payment, multiply the valuation by the December rate, adding one dollar for each male dog assessed and two dollars for each female dog.

Checks given in payment of taxes do not liquidate the county's claim until honored at the bank. When checks are not paid on presentation, the taxes for which the checks were given will be reopened without notice to person giving such checks.

The tax duplicates give the property in the name in which it stood the day preceding the second Monday of April of the year for which the taxes are levied. So that any transfer made on or after the second Monday, of April of any year will not appear on the tax duplicate until the next tax year.

The Treasurer's Office will be open between the hours of 8.00 A. M. and 4.00 P. M. from the 1st day of October to the 20th day of December, and from the 1st day of April to the 20th day of June, for the purpose of receiving the taxes charged on the tax duplicate.

To insure prompt answer, all inquiries made by mail concerning taxes should be forwarded prior to December 10 and June 10. While every effort will be made to accommodate the public, taxpayers are urgently requested to call early and pay their taxes and thus save themselves, as well as the Treasurer, the disagreemble rush at the end of the season.
